The Story Behind

Maybe you know it – it is a pity typing a password again and again and again...
Especially when one is an IT professional...

And the fear – where one should store all these passwords and other critical texts and strings…
A piece of paper can be lost. Or stolen.
Keeping them in a phone or in a computer? What if my device is compromised and a hacker sees (and can do) anything what I am doing?

Being a group of electronics devices developers we decided to develop something clever for us – a Password Keyer.

And because it looks people around us are interested as well we decided to run a start-up company for introducing devices of this kind on the market.

Hope YOU are interested!

www.PasswordKeyer.com